English criminal law concerns offences, their prevention and the consequences, in England and Wales. Criminal conduct is considered to be a wrong against the whole of a community, rather than just the private individuals affected. The state, in addition to certain international organisations, has responsibility for crime prevention, for bringing the culprits to justice, and for dealing with ...

South African criminal law is the body of national law relating to crime in South Africa. In the definition of Van der Walt et al, a crime is "conduct which common or statute law prohibits and expressly or impliedly subjects to punishment remissible by the state alone and which the offender cannot avoid by his own act once he has been convicted." Crime involves the infliction of harm against ...

Why are reverse onuses problematic for the law of evidence? How should the problems they raise be resolved? The legal burden of proof is the 'legal obligation on a party to satisfy the fact finder, to a specified standard of proof, that certain facts are true' [1]. The evidential burden is the responsibility on a party to adduce sufficient evidence for the court to consider its case.
